A Representation and Chronicle of American Art Taste!

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875

EIGHTH YEAR.

THE ALDINE,

THE ART JOURNAL OF AMERICA.

Issued Monthly.

A Magnificent Conception, wonderfully carried out.

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the production of our great artists, has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which so invariably followed such attempt in this country by reducing an art journal, did not prove the faithlessness of the people of America to the claims of high art. On the contrary, a deeper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white, although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of The Aldine will be most appreciated after it is bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with the issue of a similar class, The Aldine is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for the time the cost; and then, there is the Chromo, besides.

The national feature of THE ALDINE must be taken in no narrow sense. Type not cosmopolitan. While THE ALDINE is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself exclusively to the reproduction of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate only on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while pleasing before the patrons of The Aldine, as a leading characteristic, the productions of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving a constant all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The artistic illustration of American scenery, original with The Aldine, is an important feature and its unequalled plates are of a size more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any inferior page. The judicious interspersion of landscape, marine, figure and animal subjects, enables an unbroken interest impossible where the range of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of The Aldine is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical disquisitions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose portrait in a former issue attracted so much attention,

"MAN'S UNSELFISH FRIEND."

Will be welcome in every home. Everybody over loves a dog, and the portrait is executed so to make the life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal itself. The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage tells that his own Newfoundland dog (he does in Brooklyn) barks at it! Although so natural, no one who sees this premium chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

Besides the chromo, every advance subscriber to THE ALDINE for 1875 becomes a member, and entitled to all the privileges of

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the originals of all The Aldine pictures, which, with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every series of 5,000 subscribers, ten different pieces, valued at over $3,500 are distributed as soon as the series is full and the awards of each series so made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of THE ALDINE. HINTS FOR YOUNG CHRISTIANS.

1. Never neglect daily private prayer, and remember that God hears your prayers.

2. Never neglect daily private Bible reading; and remember that God is speaking to you, and you are to believe and act upon what he says.

3. Never let a day pass without aiming to do something for Jesus; every morning reflecting on what Jesus has done for you.

4. If you are ever in doubt as to a thing being right or wrong, consider whether you can do it in the name of Jesus, and ask God's blessing upon it.

5. Never take your Christianity from Christians, but ask yourself, "How would the Lord have me act?" and follow him.

6. Never trust your feelings, or the opinions of men, if they contradict God's Word.

7. In dazzling questions of truth and duty, remember that the wrong side has a crafty and powerful advocate in your heart.

First law of gravity—never laugh at your own jokes.

THE WISEMEN'S CHOICE.

It is a simple story we have to tell, and as it is a story of to-day, with the actors living and moving among us, we will not direct the stare of the multitude by publishing real names.

Let us say that Mr. Beverly was a merchant, wealthy, respected and influential, doing a business large enough to satisfy the ambition of an Astor or a Billy Grey. Previous to the fell sweep of the fire fiend in Boston, his store reared its granite front on Franklin street, and multitudinous and bulky were the bales and boxes that found daily transit to and from the busy mart.

In Mr. Beverly's employ were three clerks—George Acton, Philip Lewis and Clarence Bagbee—who had entered to learn the mercantile business, and who had given promise of proficiency. The fact that they had been retained in the house a year or more, was proof positive to those who knew Mr. Beverly, that they were of industrious steady habits, and youths of promise.

At his home Mr. Beverly had among his children a daughter—Florence by name—who often came to the store, and whom the clerks had met at her father's house. These clerks could be gay and gallant on occasions, but never toward Florence Beverly. The feeling they entertained toward her was one akin to worship. In their hearts they adored her afar off, giving her respectful attention, and prizing her smile of recognition as a priceless boon.

So far as the family connection of these three young men were concerned, they were all honorable, respected people, but none of them wealthy. Mr. Beverly was not wont to seek his trusted servants among those who had been reared in ease and luxury.

On a certain occasion Mr. Beverly was heard to remark that he would rather give his daughter in marriage to a man poor in purse, who could bring the wealth of a pure and upright heart, than to the possessor of millions whose manhood was tainted in the least degree.

This remark came to the knowledge of the clerks, and it is not surprising that they thereupon experienced wild and brilliant day dreams, in which most stupendous and dazzling castles were constructed in the air.

As time passed on they became more and more familiar with Florence, a sweet smile and word admitted to a degree of friendship which proved, at least, that she did not despise them.

At length came the devastating fire of the ninth of December. Upon viewing the scene of desolation, and calculating the chances and the necessities of business, Mr. Beverly resolved that he would not immediately seek new quarters for the continuance of his trade. He had no need and he did not care to do it; so he secured an office where he could meet and consult with his correspondents, and settle outstanding accounts, in pursuance of which only the service of his private secretary and two book-keepers were required.

The three clerks were summoned to the merchant's presence. He told them what he had concluded to do, and why he had so concluded, and he advised that they should seek some other employment until he was ready to start again.

"I shall rebuild as soon as possible," he said, "and then your old places will be open for you. In the meantime, if you are hard pushed, do not hesitate to come to me for assistance."

Within two weeks from that time both Philip Lewis and Clarence Bubbee called upon Mr. Beverly, and asked for the loan of a hundred dollars each. They had been unable to find employment, and were in arrears for board. The merchant kindly gave them the money, and with it a little fatherly advice touching care and economy.

One day, after this, as Philip and Clarence were walking down the blockaded track which had once been Franklin street, they saw a young man, in a guernsey frock, working at the windlass of a derrick amid the ruins of the old store, whom they they thought they recognized. They crossed over, and found it to be their fellow-clerk, George Acton. They were astonished and scandalized.

"In mercy's name, George, what does this mean? Is it only a stampede of yours?"

"No" answered Acton, wiping the sweat from his brow, "I am fairly and honestly at work, and I earn two dollars a day. That's better than loafing."

"Heavens!" cried Philip Lewis, with a start, "here comes Mr. Beverly and Florence. Go and hide yourself, Acton, before they see you."

But the young laborer did not budge an inch. Just then the boss called out to "hoist away!" and George applied himself to the work.

Meanwhile Mr. Beverly and his daughter had come upon the ruins of the grand storehouse. Lewis and Bugbee bowed respectfully, and then drew aside in mortification that one of their fraternity should be found in so menial a position, for it was evident that both father and daughter had recognized the youth in the garb and grime of toil, as the former clerk.

"Hallow!" cried Mr. Beverly, as soon as he was sure that his eyes had not deceived him. "Is this you, George Acton?"

"Yes, sir," replied our hero. His face was flushed, but it was with healthful labor, and not with shame,—the steady brightness of his eyes showed that.

"Are you regularly hired here?"

"Yes, sir. The contractor gave me this berth until we can find one better."

"What does he pay you?"

"Just the same as he pays others—two dollars a day; but I earn a dollar extra in the evening by keeping his accounts. It's better than nothing, sir. I tried to find a clerkship; but there were at least a dozen applicants for every vacant place. Of course I couldn't starve; and while I have health and strength I will neither beg nor run in debt. I was brought up to work, you know; and and thank heaven, I am neither afraid of it, nor do I feel above it."

"Hoist away!" shouted the master and George Acton applied himself to his work.

Mr. Beverly went over and talked with the contractor, and from the fact that they looked several times toward the windlass where the young clerk was at work, it was reasonable to suppose that they were speaking of him.

During this time Miss Florence spoke with Philip and Clarence, and a delicious fluttering seized them as they met her welcoming smile. They expected that she would speak of the sad and humiliating spectacle exposed before them, and they were prepared to tell her how mortified they felt; but she made no allusion to the circumstance. She did not even intimate to them that she had recognized the young man at the windlass.

By-and-by Mr. Beverly came out from amid the ruins, and having drawn the arm of his daughter within his own, and bowed to his former clerks, he departed. He did not bow an adieu to young Acton, for just then the laborer was busy at his work.

And Philip Lewis and Clarence Bugbee walked away talking of their pity for poor Acton.

"Mercy," cried the former, "I would not have been in his place when Florence Beverly came upon the scene for all the money in Boston."

"It was certainly humiliating," asserted the other. "But," he added reflectively, "Acton never was really high-toned; I guess his family is rather low bred, anyway."

And in this conclusion both young men fully agreed; and they further agreed that they should not in the future recognize George Acton as an acquaintance.

A week later Lewis and Bugbee had occasion to call at the office where Mr. Beverly had established his business headquarters, and they were not a little surprised at beholding George Acton seated at the desk of the confidential clerk and correspondent. It was a private room, with a glass door, which George occupied, and they did not go in there; but they ventured to ask one of the book-keepers if Acton had been permanently employed.

"I don't know about that," replied the book-keeper. "I only know that Mr. Beverly seems to have taken a sudden and strong liking for the young man—that he entrusts him with his private correspondence, and has given him a home beneath his own roof."

Another day came—a day when the sleighing was excellent, and when the merry bells were jingling far and near. Through the kindness of a friend Lewis and Bugbee had managed to secure a team for the afternoon, and they drove out upon one of the Brighton roads. Out in the country they met the superb double cutter of Mr. Beverly, drawn by a pair of rattling bays. Upon the front seat sat the merchant and his wife, and upon the back seat, smiling and chatting with all the grace and charm of friends who had given to each other the fullest trust and confidence, sat George Acton and Florence Beverly!

"What did it mean?"

If Philip Lewis and Clarence Bugbee are not stupid beyond belief, they must ere this have solved the problem; and may the solution give them new and enlarged views of life and its duties!

REMEDY FOR DIPHTHERIA.

Mr. J. P. King, of this city, recommends the following as a gargle for diphtheria, having known it to be used successfully in a number of cases, including his own child, who was considered at the point of death when she commenced taking it, but was speedily relieved. Take a piece of red oak bark about the size of the hand, a large grasp of sage leaves, put in one pint of water, boil down to a half-pint; then add one teaspoonful of pulverized alum and one teaspoonful of pulverized borax, then add enough honey to make it very sweet and use as a gargle every half hour, swallowing a little at the same time to be sure it reaches the affected parts.

A set of bad teeth, like a farm, has many achers.

A musician is airy fellow; but he can't help it.

What is better than a promising young man? A paying one.

A man cannot expect half a loaf when he gets all of the thing.

When is money damp? When it is dew in the morning and mist at night.

THE WAR ENDED

THE POLICY OF PEACE.—Above all else—and for this we fervently thank the God of Peace—there is an end of the war and its bloody instructions. We shall hear no more of "war records." As the Herald said during the canvass, 'war records' are now as dead that 'Mr. Tilden,' would not lose fifty votes had he commanded the attack on Fort Sumpter.' This canvass shows that the Americans are a magnanimous, forgiving people; that when the rebellion was suppressed the rebels became once more our brothers and our fellow citizens, and that it is the program of these States in the end to suppress the list of political rewards must henceforward be work, honesty, capacity, not what was done or said during the civil war; for, as all candid men must admit, many of the finest characters of the generation fought against the North. What shall we do with them? There is Gen. Longstreet, for instance. He fought until the surrender of Lee, and was second in command to Lee at Appomattox; and yet he is as good a Republican as even Rosoe Conkling could wish, and if to-morrow he were to be a candidate, my for the Vice-Presidency. Mr. Corkling would speak and vote for him. And if Longstreet, why not men like Lee, Stonewall Jackson, Johnston, Breckenridge and Hunter? Are these men any worse Americans now for having fought against us ten years ago; are they to be deprived because they have not joined the Republicans? Are they not better in every way than the murrain of carpet baggers and scalawags, that now overrun the South? Would not even Mr. Conkling prefer to see Breckenridge in the place of Kellogg, Hunter in the place of Moses, and Lee and Jackson, if they were alive, in the place of Patterson and Clayton? Would he not feel that the country was better served by these gallant and honest rebels than by the miserable riff-raff that now infest, deplete and dishonor the South? And is it not a matter for rejoicing that by the result of this very election the dead past has buried its dead, that Americans are brothers to Americans once more, that all the hatreds and sorrows of the rebellion are sleeping under the green hills and valleys of Virginia, and that after for the miserable purpose of a canvass in New York the eloquence of a Roscoe Conkling cannot summon up the Mumbo Jumbo of rebellion?—New North Herald.

A CUNNING EXPEDIENT.

There is a fable among the Hindoos that a thief, having been detected and condemned to die, happily hit upon an expedient which gave him hope of life. He sent for his jailer, and told him he had a secret of great importance which he desired to impart to the king, and when this had been done he would be prepared to die. After receiving this piece of intelligence the king at once ordered the culprit to be conducted to his presence, and demanded of him to know his secret. The thief replied that he knew the secret of causing a tree to grow which would bear fruit of pure gold. The experiment might be easily tried, and his majesty would not lose the opportunity; so accompanied by his prime minister, his courtiers and his chief priest, he went with the thief to a spot selected near the city wall, where the latter performed a series of solemn incantations. This done, the condemned man produced a piece of gold, and declared that if it should be planted, it would produce a tree every branch of which would bear gold.

"But," he added, "this must be put into the ground by a hand that has never been stained by a dishonest act. My hand is not clean, therefore I pass it to your majesty."

The king took the piece of gold, but hesitated. Finally he said, "I remember in my younger days, that I often filched money from my father's treasury which was not mine. I have repented the sin; but yet I hardly dare say my hand is clean. I pass it to my prime minister."

The latter, after a brief consideration, answered: "It were a pity to break the charm through a possible blunder. I receive taxes from the people, and as I am exposed to many temptations, how can I be sure that I have remained perfectly honest? I must give it to the governor of the citadel."

"No, no," cried the governor, drawing back. "Remember that I have the serving out of pay and provisions to the soldiers. Let the high priest plant it."

And the priest said, "You forget; I have the collecting of tithes and the disbursements for sacrifice."

At last the thief exclaimed: "Your majesty, I think it were better for society that all five of us should be hanged, since it appears that not an honest man can be found among us."

In spite of the inevitable exposure, the king laughed; and so pleased was he with the thief's cunning expedient, that he granted him a pardon.

A COOL ROBBER.

The very Alps of Impudence.

Policeman Badger, of the Tenth Station, had a bit of experience the other night which he is not fond of talking about. It was past midnight as he was leisurely pushing his beat through Jessup street, and as he came opposite Drayton & Fogg's jewelry store he observed gleams of light through the chinks of the shutters, and rapped at the door.

"Is that you, policeman?" asked a voice within.

"Yes," answered Badger.

"Well—it's only me—it's all right; kind o' chilly out, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"Thought so. I was just fixing the fire—good night."

Badger said "Good night," and pursued his way.

An hour afterward Badger passed through Jessup street again, and again he saw the light in the jewelry store. It didn't look right and he banged at the door loudly.

"Hallo!" cried the voice within. "Is it you, policeman?"

"Yes."

"All right. Won't you come in and warm you? It won't hurt anything for you to slip from your beat a few minutes."

The door opened and Policeman Badger entered, and he found the inmate to be a very gentlemanly looking man, in a linen duster.

"Come right up to the stove, policeman. Excuse me for a moment."

The man took the ash-pan from the bottom of the stove and carried it down into the cellar and emptied it, and when he had returned and wiped his hands he said, with a smile:

"Chilly night, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"Chilly outside, and dull inside. (Another smile.) New goods for the spring trade, and have to keep our eyes open. Lonesome work this watching all night; but I manage to find a comfort in this. Won't you join me in a tip? You'll find it the pure thing."

And the man produced a black bottle and a tumbler.

Policeman Badger partook, and having wiped his lips and given his fingers a new warming, he left the store and resumed his beat satisfied that all was right at Drayton & Fogg's.

But the morning brought a new reflection. Drayton & Fogg's store had been robbed during the night of $6,000 worth of watches and jewelry, and although Policeman Badger carries in his mind a complete daguerreotype of the robber, the adroit rascal has not yet been found.—New Haven Register.

GETTING SQUARE ON THE JUDGE.

An amusing incident occurred in a court room, about a year ago, in Keatingville, Montana Territory.

His Honor was a man well stricken in years, yet he could ride a race, shoot a rifle, and shuffle and deal as well as the next man in the mines, and he who presumed to trifle with the dignity of the court generally suffered for his temerity.

Now, his Honor was seated, and the case about to be commenced, when, in a voice of thunder, the sheriff, proclaimed silence. There was a pause, the judge looked over and saw the prisoner who had not yet uncovered his head.

The court could not possible brook such disrespect to its dignity, and his Honor called out, in an authoritive tone.

"Mr. Sheriff, remove the gentleman's hat."

That functionary, who had until now stood in a corner, leaning upon a rifle, stepped up, and politely knocked off the offender's hat with that murderous instrument, whereupon the prisoner seized the hat, and clapping it upon his head, loudly exclaimed:

"Judge, I am bald!"

"Mr. Sheriff," said the indignant court, "we instruct you to remove that hat."

The order was instantly executed, and no sooner done than the prisoner replaced the hat on his head the second time, again insisting that he was bald.

The offended judge now waxed warm and, rising up in his seat, said:

"I fine you five dollars for contempt of court—to be committed until the fine is paid."

The prisoner was thunderstruck. He deliberately walked up to the judge, and laying down a half dollar stamp before his Honor, in a solemn manner thus gave his views:

"Your sentence, Judge, is most ungentlemanly, but the law is imperative, and I will have to stand it; so here is your bits, and the four dollars and a half that you owed me when we stopped playing poker this morning just as it was a, fair."

Vance's last: "Fall seed from little fee corns grow."

"My dear sir," said a candidate accosting a stray wag on the day of election, "I am very glad to see you." "You needn't be," replied the wag, "I have voted."

WEDNESDAY.....DEC. 2, 1874.

THE CONVENTION QUESTION.

It may be too soon to say that this question is definitely disposed of during this session of the Legislature of North Carolina, yet the indications are prominent that prudence and an expediency based upon a political future may prevail over all the admitted reasons and necessities for the revision of the Constitution. We are therefore prepared to forego a cherished hope that the leading men of the State would recognize this as the accepted time, this the hour of a thorough political regeneration and disenthralment. We see no time so auspicious as the present, and we have little expectation that any future within the compass of a decade will bring round the same facilities for the accomplishment of the measure.

How the arguments, the illustrations, the encouragements of Graham, of Moore, of Batchelor, of McGehee, of Coingland and of so many of the best, and the most trusted men of the State should fall unheeded upon the ears of the people, or should not have brought conviction to the minds of those who stand in opposition to them, is one of those mysteries in mental operations that is hard to explain. But so it is, that the wisdom of men always accustomed to lead public opinion weighs nothing against will of those who counsel delay, while they admit all reasoning so forcibly urged.

There is this to be said; the opponents of the measure are honest and sincere, true to party and true to country, and while we deplore the fact that they cannot agree with us, we will not, if they are successful in their opposition, part in anger, or the less cease to regard them as true friends, working in a different way for a common good.

"CIVIL RIGHTS"

IN THE LEGISLATURE OF N. C.

This question so thoroughly ventilated in last summers campaign, and with such marked effect, was revived in the Legislature last week, by the introduction by Mr. Trivett of Ashe, of resolutions protesting against the passage by Congress of any bill on the subject. It was an effort to divert the public mind from the party responsible for the guilt of contemplated iniquity, and an attempt to clothe that party in its defeat with something of the garb of penitent remorse, and in this State at least, to claim an exemption from the denunciations which have been hurled upon the party by a claim of unwilling complicity.

The movement of Mr. Trivett was promptly met by a substitute offered by Mr. Means of Cabarrus, the leading idea of which is a recognition of the voice of the American people as expressed through the late elections as a sufficient rebuke to the Congress, and warning against farther action by that body.

The discussion on the resolutions and substitute occupied a part of last Tuesday and Wednesday, and ended on the last day by the adoption of the substitute by a vote of 80 to 21. It is only noticeable from the fact that it is the first move of a party nature in the house; that it resulted in the very proud attitude taken by the State in refusing to become a supplicant to a Congress which is not the proper arbiter of her fortunes or her rights; and lastly, in bringing out to the knowledge of the House the intellectual power of the gentlemen engaged in the debate. Messrs. McRae, of Cumberland, Means of Cabarrus, Pinnix of Davidson, were all prominent in the debate, and all won high honor as speakers, strong in argument lofty in spirit, chaste in language, and graceful in action.

And so this question has passed away, and harmony and good feeling are undisturbed. So may it be in the future, and may the spirit that pervades Mr. Means' substitute be that of the whole Legislature, the whole people the whole country—that of the recognition of the dawn of a brighter day, and a return to a feeling of amity, brother-hood and community of interest.

☞ We must not be understood from the tone of an article in this issue on the Convention question that we have either abandoned our efforts, or lost our hopes as to the ultimate success of the measure. While it may fail, and while there is, as yet, considerable opposition in the Legislature to so important a movement, there is no doubt that it is daily gaining strength among the members, and that in all probability it will in a short time lose all its formidable feature, and be accepted as the true road to political salvation. We say to our friends, take courage, and continue your efforts to bring over the faint hearted. It is not judgment to be convinced, but timidity to be overcome, that is now the system to be pursued.

☞ There are only seven Radicals in the Tennessee Legislature.

MR STAPLES' AMNESTY BILL.

And since then the spirit of Peace seems again to be brooding over the land, and the benign influence of a kindlier feeling begins to warm themselves throughout our country, it was most appropriate that the voice of forgiveness should go out from the Halls of North Carolina legislation, and that her banished, repentant and suffering sons should at length find a balm for their sorrows, and a rest from their wanderings.

It is therefore with peculiar gratification that we announce that the long deferred measure of mercy has at length been meted out, and that, so far at least as the House of Representatives is concerned, Amnesty and Pardon is an accomplished fact. Why it has been delayed so long, might be inferred from the opposition that met the benignant effort even at this late day. It is to be regretted that the intensity of party hate, or the stringency of party drill should have developed so persistent a spirit of resistance as was shown by Mr. Barnett. It is equally a cause of gratification, that Mr. Boyd, of the same party, came out in bold, manly, liberal and effective advocacy of the bill. Party no longer had claims for him, when the vision of a suffering constituency arose before his eyes, and true to his pledges, and true to his genuine impulses, he defied party allegiance, that justice might prevail.

This much for the opposite party.

Of the speakers on our own side, we can scarcely speak within the bounds of moderate praise. Mr. Staples seemed elevated by a sublime spirit of charity, by a noble warmth of generosity, by a comprehensive statesmanship, which bred him into flights of spontaneous eloquence and power, which might carry conviction to every heart and every mind. Certainly none but the most callous, none but the most enthralled in partisan bitterness, failed to be touched by his appeals, or remained unconvinced under his arguments, coming hot from his heart, and irresistible from his brain.

Mr. Moring was scarcely less powerful, and he at once earned in a body which is in so great a degree a new one, the character of intellectual power, and of gifts of oratory which gives him prominent rank among the leaders of the House.

Mr. Mendenhall, in the true spirit, of his persuasion, accepted the olive branch and urged oblivion for the past in the true spirit of Christian charity.

Mr. Strong closed with a legal demonstration of great force which satisfied the House at once of its powers in the premises.

And so the great fact is accomplished and we extend our heartfelt thanks to those who have brought it about, and our sincere congratulations to those who are again allowed to breathe the breath of freedom.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Human gratitude is not of that kind that it is apt to recognize even acknowledged benefits; much less is it of a kind to render thanks in the face of wide disaster, and the disappointment of hope.

The annual command to return thanks to the Giver of all good has hitherto borne with it something of the farce of satire. The South has been required to rejoice, when it had every cause to mourn, to assume festive garments when sackcloth and ashes was its appropriate raiment. Therefore the annual thanksgiving has been disregarded by all except those whose strong christian faith could see in our calamities, blessings in disguise; who recognized our chastisements as deserved penalties of transgression, or who might say with Job "shall we receive good at the hand of God, and shall we not receive blessings?"

But to the people at large, the rulers have piped to them and they have not danced. They have observed a dignified indifference, and left rejoicing to those on whom the sun of a temporary triumph was casting its benignant rays.

Certainly, a change was manifested on this last day of Thanks. The feeling that the prayers of the oppressed had been heard, pervaded all hearts. The cry of the captive was felt to have reached the heart of Divine mercy, and all felt that the bow of promise had at length irradiated the black clouds which had so long overhung the country, and enlightened the gloom which had overspread it.

The day of deliverance has come, and with prayerful gratitude to Almighty God, that the blessings of peace, of universal harmony, of restored brotherhood, had returned, there was general outpouring of gratitude, and of interchange of congratulation.

☞ Let it be remembered that Mr. Staples' Amnesty Bill passed the House of Representatives by a strict party vote, the republicans, with the exception of Mr. Boyd, voting for Mr. Barnett's amendment, which was equivalent to a defeat of the objects of the measure. The people will see who are their friends.

☞ The Board of Canvassers of Virginia have officially declared John Goode elected to Congress from the Norfolk District.

☞ The Louisville Courier Journal gives in detail the special orders issued from military headquarters Department of the South, in the city on the 15th, for the withdrawal of troops from several duty in several of the Southern States, commanding their return to their respective permanent places of assignment. This paper adds: Both the Department of the Gulf States are embraced in the command, and comprises the States of North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky and a portion of Florida, in the South, and the States of Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi and the gulf coast as far as Key West, Florida, in the Gulf States Department. Only three companies now remain in Kentucky.

☞ The cry from the West is pass a law to prevent the destruction of our partridges. Let a law be passed to protect them against the gun, as well as the net and trap.

☞ The proposed amendments to the Virginia State Constitution, at the late election, were ratified by nine 22,000 majority.

☞ Thanksgiving day was generally observed in the State.

TUSCUMBIA, Nov. 24.—By the storm of Sunday evening about 300 persons were deprived of their homes, and the total loss to the town and private individuals is estimated at $500,000.

The Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company loses $20,000.

The storm came on while most of our people were at supper. It came like the sound of rushing thunder, and passed over immediately. Houses were blown down in many places. The streets and roads were every-where filled with crumbling walls and shattered timbers.

The people immediately organized appointed a leader, and set about rescuing those held by the fallen timbers, and recovering the bodies of the killed. In addition to the killed mentioned in yesterday's Nashville dispatch, thirty persons were injured.

Soon after the storm had blown over, it was discovered that the iron bridge over Spring creek, about half a mile from town, had been completely destroyed. At the same moment, it was remembered that the train from Memphis might be expected to arrive at any moment. The utmost confusion prevailed, and no one seemed to know what to do. At length, a young man named Womble seized a huge stick of pine wood, and after thrusting it into a fire in a house near by, rushed towards the broken bridge, waving the blazing wood over his head as he went. He had almost reached the creek when his torch was extinguished by the rain, which was falling in torrents.

At the same time the whistle of the expected train was heard, and the next moment the head-light flashed through the darkness. The young man called with all his might, but the engineer heard nothing but the sound of the storm, and before any warning could be conveyed to him, the engine, baggage car, and one of the passenger coaches went over the embankment down into the creek, a distance of fifty feet. The rear passenger cars did not go off the track, it being blocked up by the wreck of the foremost ones.

The engineer, fireman and baggage-master went over with the engine and baggage car. They were cut out of the ruins after two hours' hard work. They were dangerously burned and bruised, but are expected to recover. Several of the passengers were slightly injured, but none of them were prevented from proceeding on their journey. They were only delayed three hours.

SEARCHING FOR THE VICTIMS.

The searching party first removed the ruins of State Senator Moore's house. Mrs. Moor was found on a bed with two heavy timbers lying across her and two children under her, dead and crushed all out of shape. Two other children were rescued alive.

John Hodgkins was blown out of the second story window of his house and the house blown down, burying his brother's family. On cutting through the wreck, Mr. Hodgkins, his wife, and four children were all found crushed to death.

The mansion of Mr. Winston was blown down and she was found killed by a heavy wardrobe and other furniture. The house was valued at $10,000. Her son in-law, ex-Governor Lindsey, occupying a portion of the house, was unhurt.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 24.—The new Legislature met at Columbia to-day. Elliott, colored, who recently re-signed his seat in Congress to become a leader in the Legislature, was elected Speaker of the House of Representatives by a vote of 61 to 51, the minority including the whole delegation elected by the fusion party in Charleston. The delegation contains several representatives of the property and commercial interests hitherto unrepresented in the Legislature and proceedings have been begun to contest their seates, although they were elected by nearly 3,000 majority.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—The following is an extract from an official dispatch of Colonel Miles, received at Lieutenant-General Sheridan's headquarters this morning. It refers to the two girls whose rescue from the Indians was announced some time ago:

"During the fight two white girls were captured from the Indians. It appears that these sisters, Adelaide and Julia Germain, aged three and seven years respectively, were capture in Kansas en route from Georgia to Colorado. They state that their father, mother, brother, and one sister were murdered, and that they and two older sisters were kept prisoners. They have no positive knowledge of their subsequent fate, their story of so much suffering is too horrible to relate. They were almost naked and much starved. The two older girls died from exposure and neglect. The younger, a girl of seven years, is still in a precarious condition, and cannot, when strong enough to endure the journey, will be forwarded to Leavenworth. I most earnestly recommend that ample provision be made for these children by the Government out of the annuity appropriations for the benefit of the Cheyenne Indians."

It is certainly proved now that the whites have entered the Black Hills region since the military expedition.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—The steamship MacGregor has arrived from Australia and Honolulu. The King of Hawaii is on the way here in the United States steamer Benecia. Before his departure from the Sandwich Island he reconstructed his Cabinet. He also appointed Prince Demonholias as regent during his absence in the United States. The Prince has also been proclaimed as successor to the throne.

John Norton, chief mate of the whaler James Allen, with Alexander Collins, Thos. Barker, John Seypon, Carlos Aubler, and Charles Beyer, seamen, went in a boat from the vessel and struck a whale. The line got foul, and they were drawn down and all perished.

The cutter Lapwing, with a crew of four white men and several native sailors, while on the passage from New Caledonia, stopped at the island of Santa Anna for provisions, and the savages massacred her captain, officers, and all the crew but two—a native sailor. No names are given.

We are glad to see that R. M. Smith & Co. Richmond Va. are again filling orders, and by the 1st of January will have their Factory completely rebuilt. They are Manufacturers of Farm Machinery and Tobacco Fixtures. Next week will appear their Advertisement. Sometime since they sustained a loss by fire of $25,000; they were insured for $10,000. All of their valuable patterns, and their Store fronting on Main Street were fortunately saved.

We are pleased, to chronicle another arrival in our midst. Mr. Exum of Wayne has purchased the residence, lately occupied by Charles M. Parks Esq., and with his family has already entered into possession. We tender him a hearty welcome, among us, with all good wishes for his success.

Death of Sheriff Harris.

We regret to learn that Mr. John L. Harris, Sheriff of Person County died at his residence in Roxboro on the 21st inst. He was elected to the office in August last. He was popular in his County and possessed of very many estimable qualities.

Death of Arthur Hill Esq.

It is with infinite regret that we announce the death of Arthur Hill Esq of Wilmington, a gentleman well remembered by our citizens, as a resident of this place before the war, highly esteemed, honored by all who knew him. Frank, chivalrous, and dignifiedly cordial, he was emphatically, a gentleman "without a cross." Our heartiest sympathy is with the bereaved family, for though his place may in time be occupied no other can ever fill it.

Mr. Hill was 75 years of age.

A Nice Turnip.

Our friend and fellow citizen Mr. D. T. Clark, has just presented us with a fine Turnip of the Stone variety. Without being by any means a mammoth, it certainly is a very fine specimen, weighing six and three quarter pounds. We tender however hearty thanks, and hope for further favors. Go ye, and do likewise!

Deputy Sheriff McDade, last week raged two noble wards of the nation for stealing corn in the neighborhood of Cedar Grove.

We are glad to see that the ticket office and passenger room at the Depot have been moved to the north side of the track, a most sensible move, which will be duly appreciated by the travelling public.

Senator Parish.

This gentleman made a run home on Saturday evening after a fortnight's absence in Raleigh. It is not too much to say that he has made a most favorable impression in the Senate Chamber, by his clear practical sense, and by his forcible style of speech. He is regarded as one of the most zealous and useful workers of that body, and is reflecting high honors upon his constituency.

We acknowledge an invitation to the Hop at the Barracks on Thursday night. Absence deprived us of a pleasure which would have been appreciated, to judge from the satisfaction expressed by others.

Arms.

Horner and Graves' School is in the receipt of one hundred Breech loading guns. The same number have been allotted to the Bingham School and to the Charlotte Military Institute. There is no danger in the boys now, since the late elections have determined the fact that this is a country common both to North and South.

Maj. Gales's Lecture.

Our principal being absent, and unable from circumstances ourselves to hear the address, we have been compelled to depend upon the verdict of others as to its merits; which has been from all sides, an unqualified one, expressive of perfect delight and qualification.

Eulogy from us were but wasted words. Suffice it to say, that another spray has been added to the wreath already encircling the brow of the genial and eloquent orator.

It has become of almost a nightly occurrence of the 'possum around this vicinity.

Our farmers should be on the lookout, only a few nights ago some parties with wagons entered the yard of a very worthy individual in colored town and stole from his barn a lot of fodder. We understand they have been stealing corn from the crib also of late. It would be well to give the parties a heavy reception of powder and shot.

The Greensboro State says, that several of the counterfeiters were tried at Asheville last week, and convicted. Among them was D. Blackburne, who pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three years imprisonment in the Albany penitentiary. This is the same man who jumped out of the car window between Greensboro and Charlotte, trying to escape from the custody of the Deputy Marshals having him in charge. That leap broke his leg. After that he escaped from the Asheville jail, was recaptured, John L. Crane was sentenced for two years in the penitentiary.

Messrs. Merrick and Glover are establishing a spoke and handle factory on the Neuse, near Goldsboro.

A young man by the name of John Burnett, in the employ of Mr. Durt, the gas fitter, made a narrow escape from suffocation by gas at the saloon of Mr. John Haar, yesterday afternoon. He was engaged with others, in repairing a pipe, when the gas suddenly overpowered him and he remained senseless and speechless for over an hour, it being the impression for some time that he was dead. He finally revived sufficiently to get to his home, but was still at last accounts in a very weak and exhausted condition from the effects of the gas.—Star.

The Statesville American says we learn from Mr. Lewis Pearson Cassidy county, that Mr. Daniel Setzer who lives 2 miles east of Newton, on Sunday the 15th inst., killed a large Grey eagle, measuring nine feet from tip to tip of wing. It alighted in the yard.

On Saturday night, the 14th inst. Miss Lizzie Shaver, near Mr. Rufus Boothe in this County, while handling a lightwood torch ignited some straw in the loft of her house, and in her efforts to extinguish the flames her clothes caught on fire and she was so badly burned that she died the next night.—Oxford Leader.

The Newbern Times says "The Atlantic and N. C. Road is doing a fine business, its transportation facilities being nearly all in use. Under its present management it is building up a fine trade on the N. C. Railroad, both in imports and export."

We learn from the Kinston Gazette that the man Deal, who was found dead in Kinston, while Robinson's circus was performing in that town, was killed, not by man, but by lightning whiskey.

We learn from the Salem Press that the Forsyth County railroad suit was tried at Davidson court last week, and the Jury rendered a verdict against the land holders, which relieves the county from paying the railroad tax, at least for the present. Judgment suspended. The matter will now probably be carried to the Superior Court.

Miss Julia Lancaster, the leader of the Presbyterian choir in Oxford, is said to be the finest vocalist in the State.

The father of T. T. Mitchell, Esq. Representative in the House from Franklin, is lying dangerously ill at his residence near Franklinton.

The Greensboro Patriot says, Our nurserymen are well now shipping trees and plants. This branch of industry brings into Guilford County annually not less than $20,000.

A number of citizens of Mecklenburg county who favor the proposed scheme for improving the navigation of the Roanoke River from Gaston and Clarksville, held a meeting last Monday in the office of the sheriff at Boydton. A number of gentlemen present offered to assume the expenses amounting to $600, incident to the preliminary survey of the river between the two points named. A committee was also appointed to receive individual contributions and to superintend the expenditure and application of the same. The movement appears to be in the line of success—thanks, mainly to the energetic efforts of Col. Wm. Townes.—Roanoke News.

Joseph D. Elliott, who shot and killed Charles T. Neal, last February, in Statesville, was found guilty of manslaughter, at Wilkes Court, last Wednesday, and sentenced to five years in the Penitentiary.

$5 counterfeit bills on the 1st National bank of Chicago, have been detected in Charlotte.

THEFT.—$20 REWARD.

I WILL give a reward of TWENTY DOLLARS for the detection of the thief, who stole from my Barn in Hillsboro on the night of Saturday or Sunday, 24th or 25th inst., two sets Carriage Harness, 1 set Buggy Harness, including bridles, and 2 collars for wagon gears. The Harness were plated mounted and of course nearly new.

Obituary.

Resolutions of Respect and Sympathy passed on the death of Sister [illegible] Wife of Brother [illegible] Hillsboro Grange.

It gives us pleasure to hear Capt. Gales so well qualified and disposed to contribute to the excellence of this Institution, with few equals and no superiors in the Southern States. His management is unimpeachable, and the confidence that it may be regarded as lending perfect security, even within the brief period of his existence, into a firmly established success, is wholly indispensable to success.

While we extend praise to the Faculty, it is right to add, that much is due to the docile genius of the young men. We have never seen so many gathered under similar circumstances, whose deportment was so perfectly gentlemanly and correct. Instead of being a terror to a community, as school boys often are, they have won the respect and the good will of all, and to be a Horner and Graves' boy, is a passport to every heart and hearth.

The Aldine.

The December number is at hand, beautiful as ever—more so in fact from the series of illustrations brought forward in this number—the "Seasons" presented in a series from the budding Spring, to the decay and dearth of Winter. It is a suggestive task for the viewer, just at the close of a dying year to have recalled the various steps of the past, and have grouped in one glance, the progress of the year—a fitting picture of human life.

Other pictures of natural scenery, mostly views in Europe, and most beautiful.

Subscribe to the Aldine.

☞ We had hoped to be able to present a more extended notice of Maj. Gales Lecture before Horner and Graves' school on Wednesday evening than appears in our columns.

Being absent, we were compelled to rely upon information from others, which we have not obtained. Our regret is the greater, as Major Gales is one of those gentlemen so rare in gifts, and so accomplished in letters and the graces of oratory, that we always find pleasure in bringing his merits to notice. Purely intellectual and literary accomplishments have rather risen to a rank in popular estimate, while the fields of political and pulpit oratory is always full, and the interest of the public never sated.

Major Gales has led the way in opening up a new arena for intellectual enjoyments, and with such distinguished brilliancy and success, that while we cannot believe he will find any superiors, we do hope he will find many followers.

The Dog Law.

We hope while Legislators have their hands in, they will not forget our suggestions to give at this session some protection to the farmer by a tax on dogs. Sheep Husbandry may become an important branch of industry and source of wealth to the State with such protection. Without it, it must languish and perish. Every resource of our State must be fostered. Statesmanship demands that this question upon which so much of prosperity depends must be met boldly and intelligently, and with a feeling above that of deference to personal partialities or neighborhood prejudices. Give us a Dog Law.

The farmers of Orange have put in large crops of wheat and oats, and it is looking fine, at this time the prospects are very encouraging, better than it has been for several years, they seem to be turning their attention more to the cultivation of grain than usual, believing more grain and less tobacco will pay better.

CENTRE GRANGE, No. 870.
ORANGE COUNTY N. C.

The following Memorial tribute was adopted to the memory of Stephen T. Forrest, at a meeting of the Grange Oct. 3rd. 1874.

Whereas it has pleased the Great Head of the Church to remove a workman from the field of his earthly labor to his eternal harvest home our beloved brother Stephen T. Forrest,

Resolved, That we recognize with feelings of sadness the inroad of death upon our ranks, who in reaping his rich harvest robbed us of our noblest member; the county of a most worthy citizen; the Church of a jewel; the Good Templars of a pattern; the Masonic Fraternity of a good man.

Resolved, 2nd. That we offer to the bereft members of the family our sincere condolence, and for them our earnest prayer is, that he who promises to be a Father of the fatherless and the husband of the widow, may afford them gracious consolation.

Resolved, 3rd. That the Secretary of this Grange be instructed to record—furnish a copy to the family, and have published in the Hillsboro Recorder, the foregoing resolutions.

On motion of J. H. Parish, that the members of Centre Grange meet at the grave of our lamented brother on the first Saturday in Dec. 1874, for the purpose of planting a Memory tree, in memory of Bro. Stephen T. Forrest deceased. Request all the members of Church. Adopted.

No 1 For Christmas

GOOD NEWS FROM SANTA CLAUS.

As it is very doubtful about Santa Claus visiting Hillsboro this Christmas, as he has took his departure to the cold regions to get married on Christmas eve; but before he took his departure he did not forget to send a full supply of valuable Gifts and Presents to his Head Quarter in Hillsboro. Many nice and valuable presents have already arrived for the little folks, and will continue to arrive every WEEK UNTIL CHRISTMAS DAY, such as Toys of every description, French and common Candies, Apples, Raisins, Figs, Cocoanuts, Nuts of every kind, Lemons, Oranges, Accordeons, Harps, and most every conceivable article in the fancy line. He sends greeting to all his friends, and wishes them all a happy Christmas; and his last request is for everybody to call at his Head Quarter and get supplied for Christmas Holidays.

In addition to Santa Claus' goods, we keep constantly on hand the best Chewing and Smoking Tobacco, Snuff, and the finest imported Cigars.

We will receive in a few days our lot of Fire Works, such as Crackers, Torpedoes, Roman candles, Sky-Rockets, Spit-Devils, Blue-lights and every description of Fire Works. We will also have on hand a full supply of Fine Groceries, expressly for Christmas. In fact we can supply you with most all you may want, so we invite Ladies and Gentlemen, and everybody else, to call and examine our stock. SOWING OATS AT THE SOUTH.

A correspondent of the Southern Cultivator J. A. Smith, of Cokerbury, S C; gives his experience as to the difference in sowing oats in the Fall and Spring, as follows:

The 1st and 2nd days of September, with two 32-inch dickson sweeps, I plowed in 18 bushels of red oats in twelve acres of cotton. I think the land averaged half a bale cotton to the acre. It was well prepared and lightly manured for cotton. The oats yielded about forty bushels to the acre; were the finest I ever saw, and that was the opinion of many others.

In January I turned ten acres of land that had been in cotton, with Holbrook's Swivel two-horse plow, and harrowed in red oats, a little more than two and a half bushels per acre. I think they made from fifteen to twenty bushles to the acre In February and March I sowed some more the same way; they did not get high enough to save many. So I have concluded that early in the Fall is the time to sow red oats; and after January it is too late to sow them.

Another correspondent, of the same State also urges every farmer to sow oats in the Fall He says:

Last Fall I had an acre that was in corn The Corn being very poor, I cut it down in August, and a fine crop of crab grass soon came on. I cut this off in September, and plowed it up first as deep as I could with a one horse plow; in October I sowed 40 bushels of cotton seed. 2 bushels red rust-proof oats and plowed in with a small plow. Made 42 shocks of one dozen bundles each, of the finest oats I ever saw. And I would suggest to every farmer, and more especially to those who are making slim corn crops, to plant one or two acres and manure highly, to come on early next spring. It will make him feel right good next May, just about the time their fodder is giving out, to harvest a few hundred bundles of fine oats. Experience has taught us that the philospher's stone, in farming, is to make the farm self-sustaining. On this hangs all the law and the prophets, and I may truly add profits.

POULTRY IN SMALL YARDS.

I live in a small town and have fenced off as a poultry yard a little corner of my vegetable garden, making a space of about 16 by 5 feet and have in enclosed by a slight fence of plastering lath in which I have also a small sliking hole, to put in fresh water to the chickens. At one end is, of course, a few boards put up as a roof, and under it a couple of poles to roost on. A box on the ground projecting outside with a lid to lift up but having the opening within the yard, constitutes the laying apartments with three divisions, in each of which is a porcelain nest egg. The entire cost—including labor—about $2 75.

In this simple poultry establishment I have four Leghorn hens, which on some days lay me 4 eggs, on some days lay me three, and for the past four months have averaged 18 eggs per week. When I first put them in, one wing was slightly shortened, and after one or two attempts at first there has been no effort since to fly out, and they seem entirely happy and contented in their small domain.

I thought it might be useful to some of your readers similarly situated in small towns or city lots to know how easy it is to have a supply of fresh eggs without much trouble or expense. When the yard is mown the grass is thrown into them. I supply them also with the egg shells, broken bone, gravel, scraps of meat, the refuse of the kitchen, fresh water two or three times a day and consider they pay me well for all trouble. Corn is dispensed to them occasional but the principal food is scraps. They require also occasionally green food, for which the refuse of the garden also answers well—such as superfluous beets, imperfect cabbage heads, pea haums, grass and weeds. Some of the large green worms which infest tomatoes, are thrown in to them and devoured with the gratest zest. It will thus be observed my poultry establishement utilizes many things which would otherwise be a nuisance, and by gathering up the fragments so that nothing is lost, I reap my reward in plenty of nice fresh eggs.—LEVI HINSON in Practical Farmer and Journal of the Farm.

The bump of destructiveness—a railway collision.

Nothing more impairs authority than too frequent or indiscreet use of it. If thunder itself was to be continual, it would excite no more terror than the noise of a mill.

"This fire was the result of gross carelessness," said an insurance agent to a man whose store was in ruins. "I know it," replied the man, "and that's just the risk I paid you to assume."

Imagine the wrath of a young woman who rises from her seat in the horse car to give it to an old lady, when she turns around and sees that the young man opposite is gazing out the window, instead of gazing at her approvingly.

VINEGAR BITTERS

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of VINEGAR BITTERS?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of VINEGAR BITTERS in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs in Bilious Diseases.

The properties of DR. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS are Aperient, Diaphoretic, Carminative, Nutritious, Laxative, Diuretic, Sedative, Counter-Irritant Solutive, Alterative and Anti-Bilious.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to DR. J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored Viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Fortify the body against disease by purifying all its fluids with VINEGAR BITTERS. No epidemic can take hold of a system thus fore-armed.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt-Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelmintics will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
